

NEXT ICONIC WALK PROJECT

August 2024

Project Update

Public Information Sessions

The Next Iconic Walk design team is in the process of finalising concepts for Tasmania's Next Iconic Walk. The track route has been ground-truthed by various consultants, and lookouts and other key points of interest have been identified along the way. The project team would like to share these concepts with the public and will be holding information sessions for those interested in the project to come along and hear about the progress of the project, view hut concept designs, maps and photos along the track route and see the early interpretation themes for the walk.

The sessions will be a drop-in format with no RSVP required. Sessions will be held in the West, North-West, North and South of the state. For convenience, two session times are available at each location - drop-in to the location and time that suits you best!

Members of the Parks and Wildlife Service project team along with consultants from the project design team including representatives from Charlie Bravo Designs (interpretation consultants), ERA Planning and Environment and JAWS Architects will be onsite at the following dates, times, and locations:
